Hope Point Press, LLC. Paperback. Condition: New. 200 pages. Dimensions: 8.5in. x 5.5in. x 0.5in. Mandis Miracle culminates the second part of The Miracle Trilogy. It is set during the 1960s in Mississippi during the civil rights era and tells of one girls struggle through personal adversity and hardship in order to persevere to carry out the secret told to her by her mentor and friend, Francine. Mandi Watkins is a bright, young girl who comes from a tightly knit black American family full of love and pride, whose faith is instantly tested when Mandi is suddenly struck with cancer at a tender age. Despite all the familys efforts to save Mandis life, her health worsens to the point where shes eventually told that she has only five months to live. Overcome with grief, fear and bitter panic, Mandis mother, Thelma, who is also an enthralling character in the series, goes to her employer, Francine, in desperation to help save her child. Francine, upon learning this, takes on the proposition, offering basic and universal laws to conquer the challenge in the same way she was mentored years before. Slowly, as Mandi uses the healing principles, Mandi and her mother Thelma commend Francine enormously for her e orts, but in response, all Francine says is: If you really want to thank me, share this information with someone else. Just pay it forward. Attentive to her request, Mandi promises to do so, and grows up from her teenage years into adulthood, in a search to fulfill her mentors request, which happens in a most unlikely way. Experience a powerful story that has received critical acclaim regarding the God-given power of thought, intention, love, happiness and truth. This is a book that will not only change your life, but inspire the lives of those...
